

Highlights

- SAR imaging quality (NESZ, resolution) integrated as MOO objectives in scheduling
- G-BL-seeded NSGA-III shows a conditional empirical saturation regime for SAR quality
- Third objective density-dependent: distinct at sparse, converging at high density
- Multi-objective advantage concentrates in sparse regimes ($N \leq 100$)
- G-BL-seeded MOEAs converge to the greedy coverage reference at high density